Website Accessibility

An accessible website is one that allows people with disabilities and older people to browse with the same level of efficiency and enjoyment as all other users. According to a study conducted in 2003 by Microsoft, about 20 to 25 percent of the population encounter difficulties using the internet and could benefit from more accessible web content.

We strive for equal opportunities in the internet space for people with various disabilities and those who use assistive technology for computer use.

Information about website accessibility

Considerable efforts were invested in this site to meet the requirements of the Equal Rights for Persons with Disabilities (Service Accessibility Adjustments)

Regulations, 2013.

- The accessibility adjustments were made according to the recommendations of the local service standard.
- The tests were examined for the highest compatibility with the Chrome browser.
- The site provides a semantic structure for assistive technologies and supports the common usage pattern for operation with the keyboard using the arrow keys, Enter, and Esc to exit menus and windows.
- Adapted for display in common browsers and for use on mobile phones.
- For the best browsing experience with screen reading software, we recommend using the most current version of NVDA software.
- We are also in an advanced process of making all documents or videos uploaded to the site more accessible, some of which may not be fully accessible. If you encounter such a document or video, you can contact the company's accessibility coordinator and we will make the information accessible to you.
- Providing information in an accessible format – the company offers its customers the option to receive information in accessible formats. The provision of information is free of charge and is intended for people with disabilities. For inquiries and information on accessibility, you can contact the company's accessibility coordinator, whose details appear later in this statement. Ways to make requests and suggestions for improvement on accessibility

It should be noted that we continue our efforts to improve the company's accessibility as part of our commitment to allow the entire population, including people with disabilities, to receive the most accessible service.

If you encounter any problem or malfunction related to accessibility, we would be glad if you update us, and we will make every effort to find a suitable solution for you and to deal with the malfunction as soon as possible.
